From the personal collection of the Vice President of the British Watch and Clock Makers' Guild. The vendor previously served as Chairman of the guild on two occasions, and was the Managing Director of In-Time for 28 years until 2009.

This timepiece is the Rolex GMT-Master reference 6542, introduced in 1955 and discontinued in 1959 after a brief four-year production run. Notably, the 6542 reference was the first model to feature the iconic blue and red "Pepsi" bezel and remains the only GMT-Master reference fitted with a Bakelite bezel.
